Your business is unique – so is the role a website will play in your business. In order to serve you better we:

Specialize in small to mid-size businesses – We are not trying to land the ‘big’ client or the ‘big’ project. We focus on providing small to mid-size business owners with websites that help take their business to the next level.

Listen and understand your needs – the success of a website does not depend on the technology, it depends first and foremost on whether the website plays the role you need it to play. You are the expert on your business and we are the experts in translating your business needs in to a website.

powerful practices and ancient ideals of warriorship and martial arts. Reflecting the many years of training and real world experience of Soke Eugene Coutu, his art is perhaps the finest Kenpo available today.

Kenpo is an art designed to fit every body type, and a broad foundation of technical skills are deeply explored. Starting with blocks, punches and kicks students progress to locks, breaks, throws and takedowns. These skills are augmented with escapes, diversions, defense against multiple attacks and street survival tactics.

While traditional Kobudo refers generally to weapons like the sword and farming tools like

2 Keys to Online Success

 Comments

Posted on April 20, 2009 in Marketing by tthorp

If you want to have a successful website, you can achieve it with 2 simple directives:

- your web content needs to be relevant to what people are searching for
- your website needs to be usable to a visitor within 5 seconds of them finding your site or they will bounce
